WHEAT—The winter wheat crop of 1903 has now been harvested under most favorable weather conditions for saving the crop, as a rule, but as the season advances and threshers' returns have been received, it has become more and more evident that the yield is not up to expectations, the greatest deficiency because the greatest deficiency because of the greatest deficiency because the greatest deficiency because the greatest deficiency because of the greatest deficiency because the greatest deficiency because of the greatest deficiency and greatest deficiency and greatest deficiency deficiency deficiency and g more evident that the yield is not up to expectations, the greatest deficiency being in the Ohio River valley and southern Missouri. There are reports from the winter wheat sections elsewhere of disappointing yields and there are practically no reports of the yield overrunning the estimates. Final returns will more than likely show moderately lower yields, although the quality is above the average and a large proportion of the winter wheat crop will grade contract.

CORN—The past week has not been so favorable for corn as the preceding two weeks, due to abnormal weather conditions the past few days. Rain is needed in most of the commercial corn states, extreme warm weather being reported in the southern part of the corn belt of late. Very little damage has been done so far but unless rain comes soon serious damage will soon be reported. The outlook for the growing crop is so uncertain, being dependent on future weather conditions, that more or less nervouseness, and violent fluctuations, may be expected in the speculative markets during the next two months, with accidents all in favor of the long side. We look for a good scalping market in corn and believe it can be bought on the dips with perfect safety.

PEAK AND CHASM

In whatever direction the Colorado tourist may choose by rail, i' he go to the mountains his journey is a succession of glorious scenery, varying in the characteristics of placid beauty, grotesque ruggedness, and awe-inspiring grandeur.

Up the canons are stupendous walls rising perpendicularly, or gradually sloping back toward greater hills, or, yet ward above the again, leaning forchasm, as if threatening to come tuming great rocks that bling down-projecthang suspended over smoothly by a pan-smoothly by a panthe train as it glides orama of wonders as belong only to the

To enable people to reach these scenes the UNION PACIFIC has put in effect very low rates and splendid train service from the Missouri River to Denver. Accommodations are provided for all classes of passengers.
